Budapest.—Former Emperor Charles, whose attempt to re-establish himself upon the Magyar throne met with dismal failure Monday, attempted to commit suicide by shooting, following his arrest near Komorn. Former Empress Zita saw him preparing to shoot himself and prevented him from carrying out his intention.

The former emperor and empress are now prisoners in the Esterhazy castle at Tata-Tovaros, and Thomas B. Hohler, British high commissioner in Hungary, is hurrying there with the representatives of other nations to insure the safety of the prisoners.

Horthy Bulks Karl.

Orders sent to the rebellious troops supporting Charles by Admiral Horthy, the Hungarian regent, spelled the doom of Charles' attempt to regain at least a part of his former empire. The regent reminded the soldiers of their oath of allegiance to him and demanded their unconditional obedience, adding that the success of their undertaking would depend on the strength of their numbers. The stand of Admiral Horthy had its effect and the royal forces scattered. Latest advices from the section of country around Komorn indicated the government troops continued their pursuit of the royalists and that the Karlites premier, M. Rakovsky, and Count Andrasz were captured by the loyal troops.

Chairman Barton Monday night wired President Stone that the board's order included the general chairman. The executive's reply, sent Tuesday morning by the five executives, advises Chairman Barton that it is "evident you have statements of the several executives confused," and explains that the general chairman of the engineers have no authority to order or to take part in the proposed strike, this authority being invested in the grand officers and the executive committee only.

Message of Barton.

Chairman Barton's message to Mr. Stone follows:

"We are receiving word from chairman that they have been advised by you they need not attend Wednesday. This is not the meaning of the board's order in view of your statement to board that it is important that all be present in person. The board desires their presence."

The reply to Chairman Barton's message follows:

"Very evident that you have statements of the several executives confused. Mr. Lee stated, it would require action of chairman and committees on individual roads. Sheppard, Clegg, Clegg and Stone stand in the lead and the local and branch officers had full power to represent them and make satisfactory settlement. We have notified executive committee to be present. We are also advised you are calling in chairman of all short line and electric roads for what purpose we do not know, as these men are not involved in present controversy. They are asking for instructions as to what to do, not writing. We understand board will reimburse them for time lost, rail road fare and expenses."

The majority of the population of Budapest is shown great apathy toward the prospect of Charles returning. The inhabitants generally are tired of the hardships and excitement of the last year and are anxious for peace.

Madison.—Warrants and charges against Mrs. Martin Lemberger and her son, Alots, growing out of alleged perjury at the pardon hearing of John A. (Doggie) Johnson, when Lemberger was arrested for alleged murder of his young daughter, were quashed by Judge A. C. Hopmann, in superior court here.

In his plea to the court, asking that the warrants be quashed, R. A. Jackson, special prosecutor, said there is no provision in the statutes authorizing the governor or anyone he may designate to conduct a hearing in a pardon proceeding to administer an oath, saying that as a result perjury could not have been committed.

Preliminary hearing on the trial of Martin Lemberger will be conducted within the next week or two. Johnson, who is serving a life sentence for the murder, is being kept in the state prison pending outcome of the trial.

GERMAN CABINET CHANGE POLITICAL

Has Little Outside Significance.
View in Official Washington.

By DAVID LAWRENCE.
Copyright 1921, by Janesville Gazette.

Washington — Germany's cabinet changes are purely political and not economic.

Unless the new chancellor adopts an attitude of hostility toward future of German obligations to the allies, the new ministry will be of no particular importance externally.

This is the view taken in Washington where the approaching formation of peace between Germany and the United States is counted upon to help any new ministry in Germany, provided that ministry shows the same good faith as old Chancellor Wirth in attempting to meet reparations payment.

The cabinet change in Germany comes at a critical moment. The next payment due the allies from Germany is Nov. 15. Official reports have indicated for some time that Germany would pay the instalment due next month, though there has been some doubt about her ability to meet the next one in March. The feeling here, however, has been that if the German cabinet were properly supported it would be able to consolidate the various elements of the situation so as to get by the March payment too.

Attitude Toward Obligations

Nothing on the other hand could be regarded as more favorable than a tendency on the part of the new cabinet to assume a belligerent air toward German treaty obligations. This, our people here believe, would only give France further excuse for the maintenance of a large standing army and the continued expenditure of money for military establishments which ought to be devoted to the industrial rehabilitation of France, is not to the payment of her own war debt.

American Commissioner Drexel is in intense touch with all the various political leaders in Berlin, and such indications as he gives of the impending changes would lead to the conclusion that the new cabinet, particularly if controlled by Herr Stresemann of the People's Party, would be as sincere as was Chancellor Wirth toward the allies.

Wirth's Great Force

Until the downfall of Herr Wirth it was not realized exactly what a stabilizing force he was in the councils of Europe. For the first time since the war the work of a German chancellor was openly commended in the French parliament by her premier. Mr. Lloyd George did the same in the British parliament, and on one occasion here Secretary Hughes took occasion to show his faith in the good intentions of Chancellor Wirth.

He is strong in moral support from the allied and associated powers. It would set Europe back a whole year if the new chancellor attempted to appease the monarchists and conservatives by again defying the allies. The first expression of the new cabinet is therefore awaited with keenest interest. Certainly, as the representatives of the principal allied and associated powers gather next month more evidence of the possible effect of a moderate and independent Germany would induce the chances for an understanding on land armament.

Steels Did It

Chancellor Wirth's downfall is directly attributable to the decision of the league of nations' council to divide Silesia, but basically he was unpopular with the manufacturing interests because he favored heavy taxation in order to pay reparations.

Official Washington is waiting to see how the new chancellor will handle the fiscal situation, for upon it depends whether Germany will be able to meet the terms of her financial agreement with the allies.

Thanking the women who are putting Rinsو to the supreme test: hard water

For adding their enthusiastic endorsement to that of the millions of users of Rinsо in soft water localities

FROM women who live
where water is hard, word comes in every mail of highly satisfactory results with Rinsо.

Proving them to be typical American women in their readiness for new and practical ideas.

Establishing Rinsо beyond a doubt by this supreme test as the great discovery the World's Soap
Experts had foreseen it to be.

Hard water made as soft and easy to wash with as rain water.

With the coming of vast city water systems, women faced hard water problems unknown in the days of the cistern and the rain barrel.

The World's Largest Soap Maker met this condition for them by making Rinsо richer in pure cleansing materials than had ever been believed possible before.

Your clothes soak as safely in Rinsо as in water alone

Rinsо

8c

Made in U. S. A.

SPECIAL DIRECTIONS—

—to make hard water as soft as rain water

For ordinarily soft water a half package of Rinsо to a tub makes a rich lather. For harder water increase the amount until you get a thick, lasting suds, even after the clothes have been put in.

Dissolve the amount of Rinsо you have found right for the water you use in two quarts of boiling water. Pour this solution into your tub of lukewarm water—stir well.

Put in your clothes and let them soak, one hour, two hours, over night—whatever time is convenient. Rinse, to remove the loosened dirt, till the water runs clear.

No other soap product or softener is needed with Rinsо, even in the hardest water. In hard water use more Rinsо.

In hard water use more Rinsо. Always use enough to give a rich, lasting suds—even after the clothes have been put in.

ART UP-TO-DATE

BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN

New York.—A World Series baseball hero is a more suitable inspiration for a modern sculptor than a Greek athlete dead two thousand years. This is the claim of Gertrude Boyle, the New York sculptor. "Why shouldn't we turn to modern life in seeking motifs for fountains and monuments?" asks Miss Boyle. A baseball player or college runner is every bit as picturesque and dramatic a figure as a discus thrower. Why should we always ape the old Greeks? They would not have understood it. They regarded their games and their athletes as worthy subjects for the beautiful sculpture on their temples. What we call classic now was for the Athenians progressive, modern art."

Miss Boyle has for some time held this belief. And now it is beginning to find acceptance. A statue of Christy Mathewson is being suggested for Central Park, and Miss Boyle is working on the model. It is to be a symbolic statue, representing the spirit of baseball.

Miss Boyle's theory of the relation of sculpture to life is not confined to sports. She explains that "art should be responsive to the spirit of times, consciously and unconsciously reflecting the life about the artist. This is what really makes classic art—a true portrayal of the pleasures, sorrows, games and activities of the day in which the artist lives."

We have seen this theory applied to the soldier memorials recently erected in so many communities. The bronze-figures show the soldier of the great war with all his accoutrements and in his uniform and tin hat. The Greek warrior is conspicuously absent in most of these monuments.

But the modern farmer, immigrant, statesman, factory girl, and coal miner are still neglected. Further, Miss Boyle urges that we abandon the hoary convention that statues are for dead only. According to custom, a great man may have his portrait painted and it may be hung in a place of honor and nothing is thought of it. But he must be dead and buried before he can be immortalized in bronze or stone.

The progress of sculpture is being held back, this sculptor claims, by these cutwork ideas. An artist, scientist, or philanthropist, achieves great things for which he will surely be remembered. But the sculptor has no encouragement to study living geniuses when he knows that he will not be able to place his work until the subject has long been buried.

In spite of this situation, Miss Boyle has modeled a number of modern celebrities from life, and some of the statues have been placed. Her bust of John Fremont is in the Fremont High School in Oakland, California. Joaquin Miller is soon to stand in Rock Creek Park in Washington. Her bust of John La Conte, the geologist, is in the University of California. And there is a project in foot in California to place her statue of Luther Burbank in Statuary Hall to represent California in the National Capitol.

The farmers of California are especially desirous of seeing Burbank represent the state.

The almost insurmountable drawback to Burbank is that he is alive. "What of it?" asks the sculptor. "He has accomplished definite things in horticulture. Years from now, fruits and flowers will still be associated with the name and work of Luther Burbank. Why should we wait for death before conferring an honor on such a man?"

The Burbank statue now stands in Gertrude Boyle's New York studio. She tells how she gave her the choice of studying him in the house or out-of-doors. She chose to watch him in his garden where he sorted seeds and worked with his flowers.

He would flutter around the beds, she says, and suddenly swoop down to pick up something; then off to another bed and swoop again. It came to her watching him, that he was like an eagle. His hands curved to pick up the seeds and his face, with its keen gray eyes and strong nose, bore out the resemblance.

Burbank was not satisfied at first with this conception of him. He did not see the resemblance, and rather objected to the idea of representing what he termed a bird of prey. Later, however, Miss Boyle heard of his taking a strong liking to another person. He explained it by saying, "We are congenial because we are both eagles."

There is much talk of the trend of art, and if there is less ado about the friend in sculpture it exists, none the less. Gertrude Boyle explains that sculpture is leaving the classical standards of close imitation of a model and elaborate technique, and is advancing along simpler lines.

Her studio, on the edge of Greenwich Village, is filled with examples of the modern, though not futuristic art. Little sketches on only a few skillful lines are tacked on the walls—figures dancing, leaping, bending back in despair, or bowed in fear. Exaggeration, you think at first, on viewing the human figure depicted in every possible and what look like a few impossible attitudes about the studio. Then you begin to use your imagination, as advised by all modern artists, and the figures become more intelligible.

As in acting, you see that in order to tell the truth, the creator has had to exaggerate. Tiny statues in bronze and clay are on the tables and shelves of Miss Boyle's studio. Some of these are only half brought out of the clay, just enough to make vivid the attitude of clay, hate, or defiance. There are paintings, too, done in dark mass effects, showing figures straining against forces of nature or caught powerless in the grip of some trouble.

Miss Boyle finds it most desirable not to name her statues. Here again you get a phase of the modern trend. Whistler was regarded as radical when he called his paintings "Nocturnes," preferring not to hamper the imagination of spectators by descriptive titles. So, today, the artist says, "See what you can in my work. If you don't see the same thing that I did, it doesn't very much matter." But by all means use your own imagination. This forces the inspector of pictures and statues to think and to use his eyes if he is to see the work at all.

Mr. Dobs will not be affected by the strike.

THE PASSENGER PIGEON BACK IN 1860.

No one knows where the passenger pigeon went. We only know that it has utterly disappeared from the earth. Any answer made to the question is conjecture. In the Gazette a few weeks ago there was printed an article in which the theory of Orion Sutherland was given and that seemed to be the most reasonable of all—that the pigeons in frightened flight had met death in the waters of the great lakes. Pigeons were found all over the United States from time of the very first records. In reading a very old book, "An Account of Two Voyages made to New England" during the Years of 1638 and 1653, by John Josselyn, Gent., a passage relates these pigeons and the older residents of Wisconsin will readily recognize the incidents related here:

The pigeons, of which there are millions of millions, I have seen a flight of Pidgeons in the spring, and at Michaelmas when they return back to the Southward, for four or five miles, that to my thinking had neither beginning nor ending, length nor breadth, and so thick, that I could see no sun, they joy Nest to Nest and Tree to Tree by their nests, many miles together in Pine Trees. Bait of late they are much diminished, the English taking them with nets. I have bought in Boston a dozen of Pidgeons ready packed and barbaged for three pence.

Says E. D. Austin in the New York Herald, "The world struggle today is between the ideals of Abraham Lincoln and those of Karl Marx." Then it is all the more important that we teach more of Lincoln than we do of Marx in the public schools.

One argument for knee breeches is that they should cost less. They won't. Take the bald headed man; it costs just as much for a hair cut

JUST FOLKS

THOUGHTS AT A FUNERAL.

His cheeks have paled and his eyes are closed. At last in peace are his hands reposed. Now what is the wealth that he leaves behind for the world to know and the age to find? The sort of wealth which the old world heeds. A lasting record of kindly deeds.

Across the threshold which bears his name Never has stalked the demon Shame; Within the walls where he used to dwell Now sit the people he loved so well. Clear and honest and brave and true.

All of them mourning the friend they knew.

Let the thoughts smink and the cynics sneer, This humble couch is a great man's bier.

Mark his children, his girl and his dad.

Portray the father which they have had:

They are his gifts if men understand.

To the nation's wealth and the nation's good.

A high example is stricken low.

Unmoved by fashion or pomp or show.

He lived his life. At his modest death

He talked of honor and truth and worth.

And high above, when he closed his eyes,

The angels whispered: "A great man dies."

ON THE SPUR OF THE MOMENT

A LITTLE SLICE OF LIFE

It is great to have A knowledge of the military Such as we possess. The other day we were Siting in the lobby Of a great hotel, waiting.

To see a general Who had come from Across the big pond.

Finally we were rewarded.

A ponderous person, With brass buttons

And covered with gold lace

And wearing a gold cap.

We hurried to the clerk.

And gave him our card.

And asked him to send it

To the general at once.

"General? Ha-har!" he replied.

"That's Bill Hicks."

One of our carriage openers,

Going on duty for the day.

We hurried away from there.

One time Henry Ward Beecher was paid

twelve bushels of potatoes for a lecture. They didn't mean much then, but it would be a happy memory who could get that now.

Short skirts have gone out of style in New York—just like fedora hats.

Everything is normal. It is announced that Thanksgiving turkeys will be higher this year.

When a man and woman are married they are often made one, but they sometimes have some difficulty finding which is the one.

RAIDS ON MYTHOLOGY.

The Centaur would be just the thing

An auto to stop.

Today he'd make, and no mistake.

A splendid mounted cop.

Old Argus on the baseball field.

Would surely be a peach.

Should three men be on bases he Could keep an eye on each.

Circus—but no, we'll cut her out.

A thought our memory jogs—

Subways and such beat any witch

At tearing men to hoggs.

Fair Venus, if the statues tell

The truth, could never go

A-shopping on Fifth avenue.

She had no arms, you know.

CEMENT FIRMS TO BE SUED BY STATE

Action Will Follow U. S. Suit; Treble Damages Demanded.

Madison.—The prosecution started Monday by the federal government against an alleged liberal combination of cement shippers will be followed by an action on the part of Wisconsin, to recover treble damages under the Sherman Anti-Trust act. Attorney General William J. Morgan said Tuesday.

The plan of action on the part of the state will be presented to Governor Blaine Tuesday or Wednesday for his approval. It will mean a suit in a person under meaning of the federal anti-trust act and can recover treble damages for alleged losses suffered as a result of the combination that is said to exist.

Attorney General Morgan declares millions of dollars have been lost to Wisconsin through operation of the alleged cartel combination. The high cost of cement, according to A. R. Hest, highway engineer, has been largely responsible for entailing of concrete road construction.

The state highway department has been co-operating with the attorney general's office in furnishing information relative to activities of the cement manufacturers.

G. F. Clifford, special assistant attorney general, will prosecute the case for Wisconsin.

Solved the Problem
I was almost distracted with stomach trouble, gas and colic attacks and didn't know what to do. I had tried everything I knew of and the doctor's medicine did not help. I heard about Mayr's wonderful remedy. And it has solved the problem, as I can now eat anything and have no distress. It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and relieves the inflammation which causes pain, all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded. People's Drug Co., and druggists everywhere.

Painful Rheumatic Swellings Disappear

Discoverer Tells People's Drug Store and All Good Druggists Not to Take a Cent of Anyone's Money Unless Alenorhu Complete Banishes All Rheumatic Pains and Twinges.

Mr. James H. Allen suffered for years with rheumatism. Many times this terrible disease left him helpless and unable to work.

He finally decided, after years of ceaseless suffering, that no one can be cured from rheumatism until the accumulated impurities, commonly called uric acid deposits, were dissolved in the joints and muscles and expelled from the system.

With this idea in mind he consulted physicians, made experiments, and finally compounded a prescription which quickly and easily banished all symptoms of rheumatism from his system.

He freely gave his discovery to others who took it with whole heart. After years of this, he decided to let no one know about his discovery through the newspaper. People's Drug Co. has been appointed to sell Alenorhu, this remedy, with the understanding that they will freely return the purchase money on the first two bottles to all who state they received no benefit.

Have You Piles?

Then You Have Something to Learn.

Thousands who have piles have not learned that quick and permanent relief can only be accomplished with internal medicine. Neither cutting nor any amount of treatment with enemas and suppositories will remove the cause.

Bad circulation causes piles. There is a complete stagnation of blood in the lower bowel and rectum. Dr. J. A. Leonhardt was first to find the remedy. His prescription, HEM-ROID, is now sold by all druggists. Dr. Leonhardt tried it in 1000 cases with 99% success. It is 48 per cent, and then decided it should be sold under a rigid money-back guarantee.

Don't waste any more time with outside applications. Get a package of HEM-ROID. It is safe and lasting relief to thousands and should do the same for you—it sold.

MILLION AND HALF TO BE IDLE IN ENGLAND

London.—Nearly 1,500,000 persons will be without employment in Great Britain this fall, according to J. McNamee, minister of labor. Monday night, during debate in the house of commons on the unemployment bill, the government, he said, had decided to extend the scope of the measure so it would apply to the English. This is contrary to the original intention of the cabinet.
